Practice and more practice is the key to becoming a film and television programme maker and at the DBHRGFTI students learn by making films and television programmes.

Our students are talented, from diverse backgrounds, creative and enthusiastic and they make several productions during their study under the guidance of teachers who are specialists in their own respective fields. Our Institute is furnished with new generation equipment that are used at the highest level in today's industry, so that student can acquaint themselves with the tools to be used in their future career. The courses in DBHRGFTI are the best in practical education and training in film and television programme, available in this part of the country.

Our Courses

DBHRGFTI alumnus are highly successful in film and television industry. We expect them to contribute to film and television programme, achieving success in their respective fields. Some will find fresh and imaginative ways to tell stories as film makers, some will develop new ways to apply the technology.

To set them on that path, all our courses are intensely practical. Theory is put directly into practice in the studios and workshops, so that students learn by applying their knowledge in film making situations.

Our courses develop each student's creative and intellectual potential, encouraging them to extend the boundaries and come up with new perceptions and innovative work.

Three Year Diploma in Motion Picture Photography course explores the ways in which the cinematographer participates in the collaborative process of translating screenplays into meaningful films. Exercises, workshops, master classes and productions, supported by critical and analytical study of the history and development of cinematography, give students a solid foundation in the art and craft of Cinematography.

Curriculum

During the training period in the Institute, the students are exposed step by step to the field of visual communication. Their creative expression is developed alongside technical expertise working closely with colleagues from other subjects. Student cinematographers have a creative involvement in fiction, documentary, lighting and shooting several productions during their time at the Institute.

Qualification for Admission

FILM AND VIDEO EDITING

The Three Years Diploma in Film and Video Editing provides a thorough education in editing skills in a professional film making environment. Editing students are encouraged to consider their craft as part of the whole process of film and television production and not merely as the final stage, making them true collaborators, not just efficient technicians.

Curriculum

Year one is a mixed baggage of different subjects of film making. Year two and three includes different theory and practical classes, projects, workshop etc.

It also makes them aware about the history of Film and Video Editing, its development and aesthetics. As editing is directing the film for the second time, they have to follow the entire process of film making. Here students get the opportunities to learn both linear and non linear editing set ups, where they edit various projects like song picturisation, continuity exercise, mise-en-scene, documentary, telefilm, diploma film etc. The editing students also get experience of direction in the student-projects.

Qualification for Admission

Passed 10+2 or equivalent in any discipline, securing a minimum aggregate of 50% (SC/ST - 45%)
